John o'Groats village in North East Scotland is usually regarded as the most northerly settlement of mainland Great Britain. It is, though, one end of the longest distance between two points on the British mainland, Land's End in South West Cornwall being the other. The journey will be about 890 miles long, and I would like to complete the ride in 9 days. I had a total knee replacement just 16 months ago and I'm sure that I shall find it a difficult challenge. It would certainly help enormously to know that money is being raised for a worthy cause. I would appreciate as much support as possible. Every pound raised will go directly into the Fitness Suite fund. Thank you.
